Florida Bethelites Have Picnic Party

During the past few weeks as the Browns, Von Zintls, Dawsons, Herricks and Briggs occasionally saw one another in and around St. Petersburg, the suggestion was made and approved that all the Bethel folks try to get together for a picnic party some day.

The gathering took place Sunday, Feb. 20, on the Courtney Campbell Causeway which is about six miles long and is the connecting link between Clearwater and Tampa across upper Tampa bay.

The day was ideal for it with not a cloud in the sky and a temperature of about 78° and a gentle wind.

Bob and Sally Kirk who are staying in Clearwater arrived first and it is hard to say and not important who was second, third, etc., but we do know that Dick and Rita Davis, with the twins, Jimmy and Danny, were the last to show up.

Pullas County provides some excellent picnic facilities on this causeway and after L E and Chet got the water for coffee boiling, we counted up to see who was there and the score was twenty from Bethel plus two from Bryant Pond.

The following all responded when the dinner call came: Bob and Sarah Kirk from Clearwater; Bert and Mary Brown with Bill and Martha Von Zintl, who are staying at Treasure Island section of St. Petersburg Beach, also from Treasure Island, Dick and Rita Davis plus Jimmy and Danny Davis; Arnie and Alice Brown with Tom and Edith Brown who are staying in Bradenton. From in town St. Petersburg there were Arthur and Eva Herrick, Leale and Marie Davis, Chet and Ruby Briggs. The two from Bryant Pond were Arthur and Lillian Kimball, who are staying at Oneco for the winter.

We pooled our picnic lunches and ate smorgasbord style with each helping helping himself and after lunch went wading or swimming, took pictures, talked about what folks back home, and about what we had seen or should see in Florida, etc. etc.

When you are a long way from home it's mighty nice to see home-folks.

ONE-ACT PLAYS TO BE FEATURED IN GOULD CARNIVAL

When the curtain goes up on the first of the three one-act comedies to be presented on March 4 as a feature of the Gould Winter Carnival, it will mark the thirty-seventh one-act directed by David Thompson since his joining the Gould faculty in 1942. Produced originally as a pre-Christmas dramatic event they were soon transferred to the carnival program and have remained there ever since.

Departing from the usual fare of two comedies and one serious play, the director this year has decided on an all-comedy program, as being more in the carnival mood. "Opening Night," the curtain raiser, deals in farcical terms with the trials of Cornelia Olds Skinner's husband the friends who suffer near breakdowns as Miss Skinner prepares to open on Broadway in a new play. Several Bethel girls, notably Pat Kittredge, Betty York and Dawne Christie will be seen in this hilarious comedy.

"Blue Stocking," second on the program, deals with the attempts of a socialite Bostonian to bring back East her sister, who has settled in the pioneering West of a century ago. The rough-and-ready philosophy of a rugged old Western scout opens the sister's eyes to the worth of a pioneering spirit and she decides to cast her lot with the frontiersmen. Herbert Morton Jr. and Bartlett Hutchings will be seen in this one.

A rip-roaring farce laid in an isolated Italian inn, "Romance is a Racket," winds up the evening's fare, with brigands, much gunfire, and the premier of Jane Smith as a very scared teen-age tourist giving a riotous conclusion to the evening's plays. Musical numbers will be presented under the direction of Walter Marcuse. The curtain for the first play rises promptly at seven-thirty.

State Collects 16 Million in Gas Tax

Leroy T. Snowdon, Executive Secretary of the Maine Petroleum Industries Committee, has announced that Maine is fast approaching the time when its annual collections from the gasoline tax alone will exceed total collections from all taxes for a single year in the not too distant past.

He explained that total tax receipts of the state from all sources in 1938 amounted to only $19,006,421—derived from: liquor taxes, franchise taxes, inheritance taxes, insurance company taxes, potato taxes, motor vehicle fees, poll taxes, property taxes, racing taxes, tobacco taxes, and utility taxes, as well as from the gasoline tax. By comparison, the state received $16,348,346 in state gasoline taxes alone in the calendar year 1954.

"Certainly more and more revenue is coming in," commented Mr. Snowdon, "but conversely that means people are paying more and more. Federal taxes on gasoline and automotive products have also been increased drastically during these recent years. There is a limit to the amount which can be carried by motorists as a class—especially since they must also pay their full share of taxes levied against the public generally."

The annual Red Cross Drive will start March 1. Charles Bean is visiting his grandmother, Mrs. Sweat, in Errol, N. H.

William Bingham, 2nd, World-Wide Benefactor, Passes Away Thursday

William Bingham, 2nd, died on February 17 at Miami Beach, Fla. He had been a resident of Bethel, since 1911. He was born in Cleveland, Ohio, on July 21, 1879, the son of the late Charles William and the late Mary (Payne) Bingham. He attended the Union School in Cleveland and was a member of the Union Club of Cleveland. He was unmarried.

Mr Bingham devoted his life to philanthropic activities, including the furtherance of education and the relief of human suffering. By direct grants to hundreds of people, he enabled them to meet personal needs for medical and surgical expenses, as well as to finance educational costs. He gave scholarship funds to many educational institutions in the state of Maine and elsewhere.

Since 1917 he had been a trustee of Gould Academy in Bethel. Founded in 1836, Gould Academy is a co-educational boarding school and serves as the high school for the town of Bethel. During the past 25 years Mr Bingham financed the reconstruction of the entire plant and playing fields of the Academy. He was the owner of The Bethel Inn.

In 1932 he organized a charitable foundation called the Bingham Associates Fund (of Maine). Its principle purpose is the advancement of medicine through the "Bingham Plan" and its primary activity has been to provide better medical care in the state of Maine. Over forty hospitals are affiliated with it. It pioneered in the field of regional medicine by bringing medical knowledge and the facilities of a metropolitan medical center to country doctors and their patients. It is closely allied with Tufts College Medical School in Boston. The keystone of the Plan is the New England Center Hospital, a unit of the New England Medical Center. The Hospital includes the Joseph H. Pratt Diagnostic Hospital and the Farnsworth Surgical Wing, both of which were constructed at Mr Bingham's expense. The Bingham Plan has attracted attention throughout the world. It has been the model for other regional programs which have been established in various parts of the United States and foreign countries.

Mr Bingham's more important benefactions include endowment funds and buildings for many medical and educational purposes.

EDITORIAL

"Heroes Unsung"

Although it is an exception to the usual run of news we are accustomed to reading in the public prints, we are sure that our readers will appreciate the editorial in "The Christian Science Monitor" which records an encouraging incident in human behavior. The title, "Heroes Unsung," is most fitting. We quote:

"A New York eight-year-old found two broken parking meters, took out the money, and by way of his mother, turned it in to the city. Apparently he has been taught some very good rules about right and wrong. We congratulate the youngster, his parents, the Mayor (who had the wisdom and courtesy to thank both), the famous New York paper which put the story on its front page, and the radio news services which also gave it prominence."

"Badly enough, we are more likely to hear about some youth who broke into meters and stole the money. Which prompts us to extend a few additional congratulations to people who may never get into the news:

"To the autist who puts his nickel into the meter even though in a few minutes restricted parking will be over for the day."

"To the one who stops at a red light and at a stop sign late at night when his is the only car in sight."

"To the restaurant diner who corrects his meal check even when the error is to his advantage."

"To the taxpayer who lists exactly what he gave to church and charity and chooses to remember to report those small items of income that 'nobody can check up on'."

"To the woman who returns the article more expensive than the one she ordered which the department store had delivered by mistake."

"And to the many others of like character."

"Some may call them 'Casper Milquetoasts.' They are among the ones, just the same, who give honesty an everyday meaning and keep our society fit to live in."

Economic Highlights

Happenings That Affect the Future of Every Individual — National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare.

The problem of chronic illness is a tragic and serious one. Nearly 5,000,000 people suffer from it, and require long-term care, including those with hardening of the arteries, diabetes, arthritis, paralysis, and protracted illnesses resulting from injury.

Over a period of years the Commission on Chronic Diseases, which was founded through joint action of the American Hospital Association, American Medical Association, American Public Health Association, and American Public Welfare Association has been studying the problem and framing conclusions and recommendations based on the experience and knowledge of many people.

The Commission's complete report has not yet been finished. A short time ago, however, it issued a partial report dealing with the planning of facilities to care for chronically ill people. This is particularly timely now, because of recent amendments to the Hill-Burton Act, providing for Federal aid for construction of hospitals and related institutions.

Here, in brief, are some of the Commission's findings:

Care and prevention are inseparable. These aspects of care of the long-term patient have the obligation to apply early diagnosis and prompt treatment in order to prevent aggravation of the disability.

The cost of programs should be measured first in terms of human values, of effectiveness, and of productivity. The most economical care is that which most quickly and as fully as possible returns the patient to health.

Adequate institutional facilities for these patients are necessary and areas which do not have them should provide them. At the same time, the Commission feels that major emphasis should be placed on care in and around the home.

Rehabilitation services are extremely important, and programs, institutions and personnel must be aggressively rehabilitation-minded.

The personal relationship between long-term patient and physician should be strengthened. The agency should not be regarded as a substitute for the personal physician.

No pattern for organizing services fits all communities. Planning should be based on local regional facts as to needs, population, financial capacity, etc.

Planning must be directed to the needs of all long-term patients, and not limited by racial, economic, cultural or other such considerations. It also should take into account the services now available to special groups, such as veterans and members of fraternal orders.

Personnel shortages constitute a major block to improvement of care of the chronically ill. The solution lies in better recruitment, assistance with the costs of education, higher salaries, and other inducements.

The Commission also suggests medical and health insurance and prepayment plans should extend coverage to allow benefits in chronic illness, and that more tax funds should be allotted to institutions for the care of these patients.

The problem is difficult. But concrete steps, based on a wealth of factual information as well as qualified opinion, are being taken to solve it.

THE LOW DOWN FROM HICKORY GROVE

Seems like there is always some guy in politics or what have you, springing up and into the fray to INVESTIGATE. A person from some foreign land looking us over and listening would get the notion that we must be quite a shady lot.

You take a stable outfit to business if it has paid attention to its P's and Q's—starts paying dividends it is approaching the investigation stage. Some congressman or would-be-congressman will sniff something crooked and also sniff some publicity for himself, so he sounds off. Look it, he says, the people are being abused—sell down the river by the big outfit. It should be put in its place.

I say, I would not choose to tie up with a company that was not making a profit. A company barely making a go of it, operating on the fringe or verge of throwing in the sponge. Everybody in this U. S. is interested in the success of capitalism—every worker and his sweet little telephone. Capitalism has made the U. S. A. the cheap among nations. With socialism we would look as bedraggled as many a foreign land that has played around with make-believe "let the people operate the business and get the profit" and are now looking to the U. S. A. to bail them out.

It is time to make up our mind that any outfit that does not make a profit is not a safe place to work. End of sermon.

Yours with the low down,

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Vernon Street, Bethel, Maine,
Feb. 18, 1955

The Bethel Oxford County Citizen:
"We View with Concern" the editorial in the February seventeenth issue, awakens a desire to share with your readers several signs of the times.

At a gay dinner party held on the evening of your last publication date, some eighteen guests were free, well-fed, satisfied; no alcoholic beverage was served nor was any used by any person. At the table where the writer was seated, were ten guests who did not smoke.

In The Christian Science Monitor for that day is an encouraging news item: "Middlebury College announced that liquor will be banned during the ski-events at the annual carnival starting today. Harvard and Dartmouth last fall prohibited such stimulants at football games, and Dartmouth recently did the same at the winter carnival ski-events."

An organization known as Allied Youth is doing a splendid work in the school and college field. So, let us be of good cheer—naturally!

Sincerely yours,
Irene H. Thompson

THE AMERICAN WAY
THE PRO AND THE CON

by
Maurice R.
Franks

EDITOR'S NOTE: Maurice R. Franks is President of the National Labor-Management Foundation and Editor of its official publication, PARTNERS.

The year 1955 will be one of the most important years of decision for Americans. Among the labor problems to be resolved are:

The principle of States' Rights in the matter of labor legislation guaranteeing "Right to Work."

The administration of union health and welfare funds which run into billions of dollars.

Amendment of the Taft-Hartley law to as to sanction the unionization of foremen.

The Guaranteed Annual Wage. Raising the minimum hourly wage.

Substituting the 30-hour week for the 40-hour.

The vast amount of union revenue and the manner in which these enormous funds are being manipulated under a tax-free corporate set-up.

We Americans as a people have faced many issues affecting our nation's destiny in the past and have always managed to come through with decisions that were both wise and progressive. But never in the history of our country have we been beset by so many important issues to face at one time—and when the faulty resolution of any one of which can in itself spell disaster.

Today we can be especially grateful to the founding fathers of our nation for their foresightedness in providing us with the protection of free speech and a free press—the means of freely bringing to our attention full information pertinent to all issues as they arise to affect our lives. The vision of the creators of our nation's Constitution was soundly focused in our direction, though little did those early Americans dream how tremendously an agency of freedom of speech and our press would become —and how expansive an area would be theirs to protect. For the founding fathers were thinking in terms of a local, hand-set newspaper and a modest town-hall platform. But these very protective provisions in our Constitution encouraged us to develop vast new ways and means of communicating with each other and expressing our views, and today we have not only newspapers delivered to our doors but radio and television broadcasts entering our homes as well—the latter equal to, and perhaps even surpassing, the printing press as an effective medium for disseminating information.

In that news communication and commentary in their three forms are owned, operated, and controlled by human beings, it is only natural that bias in one direction or another will be communicated. The one shouting the loudest and the most often will naturally be the one most heard.

And, since the press is not strictly the property of the fourth estate, it is there to be used in several ways to put a story across. Promoters of an issue are at liberty to buy full-page spreads selling their bill of goods; and time can also be purchased on local and even nation-wide broadcasts, commensurately aimed at the minds and hearts of would-be converts. The target in each case is the newspaper reader, the owner of a radio or television set.

Now were everything equal—were both sides held to abide by stipulated rules and definite financial limitations—no hazard would arise. But no restrictions exist to hold down the horsepower of our propaganda machinery. If the program has as its command a million-dollar fund for propaganda purposes, and the con has only a thousand dollars to spend to counteract the propaganda, it is a 1,000-to-1 shot that the pro will get its story across—and for the very simple reason that the con lost by default. Financial default, if you please!

All this leads us up to one important consideration, as we of this country enter our year of vital decision: If those who sincerely believe that the proponents of economic reform are wrong in their specific proposals, they will have to undertake ways of effectively answering them—not by whispering among themselves but

AND I QUOTE

"Most business statistics now rolling in suggest improved earnings over last year. The impression may not be one of a roaring boom, but certainly it doesn't suggest that the floor will fall out from under business and that there will be a 'sizeable' increase in unemployment."—Springfield (Mass.) Union.

"What Congress should do, in our opinion, is to cooperate with the administration in slashing expenses. Bring the cost of government down, away down; continue to wipe out useless bureaus and agencies; get out of competitive business; crack down harder on waste, giveaway programs, subsidies and handouts—and then revise the tax schedule so that every taxpayer gets a real break."—Denton, Md., County Record.

Bridgeport (Conn.) Post.

"The guaranteed annual wage carries with it an illusion of security. An illusion because nobody can foretell future business developments nor how the rigid liability of a guaranteed wage agreement might threaten the very solvency of a business."—Industry's View.

"Tax inequalities should be rooted out of our federal fiscal system—particularly so when they violate the cardinal principle of fairness and justice to all alike."

Brothard, Wis., Independent-Register: "From less than a million in use in the early 1930's, there are more than 4,000,000 tractors on American farms—pulling everything from plows and harrows to cultivators and harvesters. They mean more manpower output, fewer backaches, and a rise in farm production of more than 40 per cent in the last 20 years."

DANGEROUS DISCRIMINATION

by talking to as many as possible of the American people. And of getting them to listen.

The people who are honestly convinced that the Guaranteed Annual Wage, the organization of foremen, the 30-hour week, etc., are in conflict with the best interests of the nation, then they must point out the dangers of such proposals by availing themselves of the self-same mediums of communication engaged by the forces promoting those proposals—and in equal measure.

For in this way—and only in this way—will the public of America be placed in a position to intelligently analyze each and every issue as it is presented, before committing themselves to accept or reject a proposal—and to live with the direct effects of so doing.

For it must be remembered that on every issue there always is, there always has been and there always will be, THE PRO AND THE CON.

DALE CARNEGIE

★ AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING" ★

ONE day, on his way to college, S. S. Gularie, C/O 1759, Sixth Lines, Kirkee, (Poona-3) India, learned that his sisters had been hooted at by fellow students. That enraged him and he warned them that if they continued, the matter would be reported to the police. Instead of desisting, this act compelled them to strike back for the injury he had inflicted to their precious pride.

So on the second day, while he was waiting for the train to pull in and take them to Kirkee where all of them lived, they came straight toward him with the intention of injuring him.

But before they could ask anything, the first thing Mr. Gularie did was give them a smiling welcome. In the meantime, while their voices fell on his ears like hammers, denouncing and abusing him, the train pulled in, he took his seat and requested the leader of the gang to sit beside him. "Let us reason together," he began. "Don't you want that girl to like you?" His answer was "yes." "Have you been able to accomplish this by hooting at and reviling her before others?" His answer was "no." "Can you not have that girl by your side if you approach her with sincerity and frankness of speech?" He didn't answer this, but Mr. Gularie assured him that he could accomplish this if he would but change his method of approach.

As the train approached the station anger subsided and he nodded goodbye with a warm smile. As the years have gone by their friendship fostered.

Mr. Gularie hopes his experience may be of use to us, and about this you and I have no doubt.

SCANNING THE NEWS

PRECEDENT-shaking events of tremendous historical significance which will be felt in the capitals of the world as well as here in Washington and this nation, resulting from the fast-breaking Congressional action on President Eisenhower's request for approval of his resolution setting out the intent of the United States in connection with Formosa and Formosa Strait.

First—Probably never before has such unity been evidenced on a major foreign policy decision as between a congress of one political party and the President of another, when within a week the precedent-breaking resolution sailed through both House and Senate with only three opposing votes in each house.

Second—The adoption of the resolution has ended the period of bluff on the part of our country toward Red China and cut the Gordian knot which has stymied our Asian policy.

Third—The President now has safely tucked away a pre-dated declaration of war which he may use as he sees fit against Red China, and which the Congress in an unparalleled expression of faith left up to the President's personal decision to use and.

Fourth—From a political standpoint the President forestalled any criticism which could come from the Democrats yet he should decide in his own mind the necessity of compelling United States troops either to the defense of offshore Chinese islands now held by the Chinese nationalists, or even an attack upon the mainland of China. This latter consideration may have a tremendous impact on the 1954 election, for it will be remembered the criticism leveled at President Truman for not consulting Congress before committing U. S. forces in the Korean war probably cost the Democrats the 1952 election. Republicans have called it Truman's war, and have declared the former President overstepped his constitutional authority when he so committed our troops to the Korean war without advise or consent of official Congressional action.

However in his message to the Congress accompanying the Resolution of approval, President Eisenhower took some of the sting out of this criticism of President Truman when he pointed to the prompt action of President Truman as necessary, and reiterated the Truman statement that the Seventh fleet was ordered to protect Formosa.

There is no doubt but that the resolution adopted by the Congress is all-inclusive and will permit the President on his own decision, to commit the Air Force, the Navy and the Army to the defense of Formosa and to even attack the Chinese mainland under the clause which reads, "Unhappily the danger of armed attack directed against this area compels us to take into account closely related localities and actions, which, under current conditions, might determine the failure or the success of such an attack. The authority that may be accorded by the Congress would be used in situations which are recognizable of, or defensible preliminaries to, an attack against the main positions of Formosa and the Pescadores."

Conservation Farming

In Oxford County

by Douglas L. Marston

Soil Conservation Service

Streambank and river erosion has always been one of the biggest conservation problems here in Oxford County. Unfortunately, progress in reducing this problem has been slow due to the excessive costs of properly installing structures to prevent this erosion.

A few years back the Oxford County Soil Conservation District furnished a special type of willow plant to persons interested in giving them for erosion control work. This generally proved to be a failure, particularly on the large streams and rivers, where the willow never were able to get established before they were washed out by the spring breakup of ice and the heavy flood waters that followed.

The District supervisors and those of us working with the Soil Conservation Service soon realized that only well-placed rocks would actually stop this erosion problem on our riverbanks.

The coping of the banks and the placing of large rocks on these banks is a costly operation and the only bright side to this story is the fact that the 1954 Agricultural Conservation Program has included a practice for stream and riverbank erosion control which will offer an incentive payment of 60% of the actual cost of doing this work. It is of course, necessary to get the approval of the County Committee before starting the work, but at least the possibility is there. This should be of interest to many landowners who have river or streambank erosion problems.

I was talking with Reginald Godwin of Mayville Farm in Bethel recently and he would like very much to take advantage of this new practice to do some needed erosion control work on a field bordering the Androscoggin River. John Harrington, also of Bethel, has a similar, and even more serious problem on his farm. This needed work will still be expensive, even with the help of the Agricultural Conservation Program payments.

One major problem that these farmers both have is a lack of sufficient rocks in the nearby area. I know that there are many other farmers that have similar problems and if any of you are interested in discussing the possibilities of doing erosion control work on your farm just give us a ring here at the office in South Paris, or the fact that the 1954 Agricultural

BAUSCH & LOMB SCIENCE AWARDS

Carter Taylor and Lee Carroll, members of the senior class of Gould Academy, are the 1955 winners of the Bausch & Lomb Honorary Science Award Medal for achieving the highest scholastic records in science subjects during their high school careers. It has been announced by Headmaster Elwood F. Ireland.

Only winners of this award, presented annually in 5,700 secondary schools throughout the country, are eligible to compete for the Science Scholarships sponsored by the Bausch & Lomb Optical Company at the University of Rochester.

The internationally famous Rochester, New York, optical firm provides for three or four scholarships annually with flexible stipends based on financial need. The maximum total individual Bausch & Lomb award is $4,000.

Although the Science Award Medal is presented upon graduation, the winners must be selected at an early date because applications for the scholarships must be filed with the University on or before March 1. The selection of the winners are based upon scholastic achievement in science, with incidental consideration of general academic standing, qualities of leadership, and extra-curricular activities.

Both the Bausch & Lomb Science Award and Science Scholarship Programs have been officially approved by the National Association of Secondary School Principals.

SOMERSET COUNTY MAN HEADS MAINE MAPLE PRODUCERS

Fred Weeks, of Cornville, Somerset County, was elected president of the Maine Maple Producers Association at its annual meeting Feb. 11 at West Farmington. Other officers named were Orlando Small, of Farmington, vice president, and Mrs. Marjorie Wilder, of Norridgewock, secretary-treasurer. Members of the executive committee include retiring President Richard Eaton, of Exeter; Linwood Foster, of Cornville; and George Bass, of Strons. The Maine Tree Farm award was made to John B. Wilder & Sons, of Norridgewock.

RECENTLY there has been in the news much about the proposed building of a "space platform" or man-made satellite which would be suspended in space thousands of miles above the earth. Science says it can be done, although it would take years, and cost even more money than there is in Fort Knox. The supposed purpose of the satellite would be to provide a "jumping off" place for man's conquest of outer space. Some of our best scientists disagree on whether or not the space platform should be attempted. If it will do any good, I offer my vote and state now that I am not at all in favor.

Through the years our scientists and inventors have come up with some wonderful things — things which have made living as we know it today something of an art. We can get a machine or gadget that will perform any required task — even to scratching the back.

The fly in the ointment is there because science, while giving us all these wonderful things, also came up with a couple of bombs (atomic and hydrogen) that are capable of blowing us and all these wonderful gadgets clear up to the moon.

Now they want to make it worse by discovering what sort of life we'll have on the moon even before we get there.

I just don't believe I care to know what sort of life—if any exists on the moon. If we go too far we may discover that it is populated by a race of ugly cannibals. Then think how difficult it would be for any Tom, Dick or Harry to get his gal to wax romantic by looking upon such a horrible spectacle.

Association of Secondary School Principals, and educators throughout the country. These awards are recognized as significant evidence of scientific aptitude, and have encouraged countless young people to the consideration of careers in science.

Rules of courtesy and civility demand that the strong shall show deference to the weak. Our State Police suggest that we should remember this when we drive our cars... carried along by the power of a hundred horses. Even though they may be in the wrong, we should drive carefully and, by so doing, help to protect those who sometimes seem incapable of protecting themselves.
